English Writing Requirement (EWR)

The English Writing Requirement (EWR) is a compulsory graduation requirement designed to develop the university-level writing skills you will need across your studies. You fulfil this requirement by completing the writing process, including drafting, receiving feedback, and revising your work.

Submit two drafts for targeted feedback to refine your English writing skills for university studies.

After clicking on “Submission + Feedback”, you will select either “Draft 1 Submission” or “Draft 2 Submission”. Please ensure that you also include the plan template (Draft 1) or the assignment cover + checklist (Draft 2).

Comment 1

The Introduction: Your introduction is not very effective. Please keep in mind that an introduction is like a road map of the main things you will discuss in your entire report. It provides (1) the issue background with term definitions, if necessary, (2) an overall objective of your essay and (3) an overview of your essay (how it will be structured).

Comment 2

Paragraph Length: This paragraph has appeared to have been too short. You are recommended to write around 8 to 12 lines for a well-established body paragraph that contains a topic sentence, your discussion with reference to sources and a concluding sentence.

Comment 3

Using "But" in the sentence beginning is too informal.
